KLOSTERDORF COLONIST DEATHS

as recorded in Kherson Roman Catholic Parish

Years 1849 – 1920

Kherson Archives Fond 327

Online access at

<https://kherson.archives.gov.ua/>

This index covers primarily those entries pertaining to the Klosterdorf, Schlangendorf and Mühlhausendorf families. However other German surnames were also indexed as found in Kherson city and in the villages of Kiselewka and Zarevo-Dar, as well as other entries deemed to be of interest. The researcher will note the high incidence of child mortality caused by diphtheria. Many entries identify only the father of the child, making it difficult to place the deceased into a specific family.

These Kherson Roman Catholic Parish Church records were published on the above website earlier this year. The records were read, indexed and reviewed by Mervin Weiss and Matt Klee.

Klosterdorf Roman Catholic Parish

Deaths 1904-1915

(duplicate copies purchased from)

Saratov Archives

Although the Klosterdorf villagers had built their own church in 1868, Klosterdorf did not become its own parish until “about” 1914, according to Joseph Schurr’s book, Die Kirchen und das Religiöse Leben der Russlanddeutschen.

Klosterdorf did not have a resident priest until Fr. Andreas Zimmermann arrived in 1904. While still a filial of Kherson Parish, the church in Klosterdorf began to keep its own annual Register of Baptisms, Marriages and Deaths. Prior to 1904 these events were recorded in the Kherson Parish registers. Duplicate copies of the registers were sent annually to the Diocesan headquarters in Saratov, Russia. The Archives have no records of Klosterdorf beyond 1915.

(Fr. Andreas Zimmermann died in 1959 in Mendham, Saskatchewan.)

These death records were read and indexed by Matt Klee, and reviewed and edited by Mervin Weiss. August 2021. Funding for the purchase of these records provided by Eugen Preis of Germany, and by Amy Jo Ehman and Rob Will of Canada.
